"He bleeds film, his obsession with tapping the darkest recesses of his imagination and capturing living, breathing, blood dripping nightmare logic on film resulting in a body of work that defines the limitless parameters of what the horror film can be. Fluid, frightening, and outrageous, the dark dreams of Dario Argento now turn to Bram Stoker's oft filmed vampire novel Dracula in a deluxe 3D redux. Dracula 3D is oozing Argento's eccentricity...and of course, blood...rivers of blood" - Chris Alexander - Fangoria

“... Firmly located and filmed in the Berlin underground, [Urban Explorer] cannily blends formula tropes with 20th century German political terror, from the Nazi era through the East German Stasi -- and may put a damper on the fad of exploring urban sewer systems. Pic will rack up killer numbers overseas, and likely raise interest from a U.S. buyer with an eye for sequels.” - Robert Koehler @ Variety
